

Insurance

Insurance companies are said to dislike motorists with drink-drive convictions and may decline to offer cover or charge substantially increased premiums or load excess rates. We have not found this to be the case provided you have done a course and you haggle with them – don't accept their first offer.

Go to the internet and get 3-4 prices so when you call them you have a target price in mind.

Get a name before you start and note the time and date of your calls – then you know who you have called.

We have found these to be good over the years, but if you find a good one tell us.

Start with what you were paying before and the excess (what you pay before the insurance company pays anything). Then, what is your TARGET? (the amount you would be content to pay next time).

Then get at least 2 new quotes before you make a decision.

What were you paying before?	excess (XS)	What is your TARGET?	New 1 £	XS £	Who? time and date of call?	New 2 £	XS £	Who, time and date of call?
